San Diego's coolest desserts of summer

If you're looking to chill out as the temperature soars this summer, check out these new frozen and chilled desserts being rolled out at local restaurants just in time for the sunny season. (Pam Kragen)

Common Theory Public House: Stout-battered brioche fried ice cream

This gastropub is all about craft beer, even for dessert. Vanilla ice cream is wrapped in brioche, then fried in stout batter, tossed in powdered sugar and topped with maple syrup, bitter chocolate with a dollop of whipped cream. 4805 Convoy St., Kearny Mesa. (858) 384-7974 or commontheorysd.com
