

Floral Teas

Tibetan Snow Chrysanthemum 西藏高山雪菊 25

This 'heavenly' rare flower grows wild on the isolated, high-altitude grasslands of Tibet, where the low temperatures and pure air allow the flowers to mature slowly. Contains high amounts of amino acids and proteins, and a herbal floral aroma. A light, sweet taste like honey with a cooling finish.

Origin: Shigatse Highlands, Tibet

Health: Said to lower blood pressure, calm the nervous system, support heart/liver health

Mountain Rose 雲南墨乾玫瑰花果茶 28

These mocha roses enjoy the annual sunshine for more than 270 days, developing into an abundant aromatic fragrance. Restorative tea that increases the body's natural energy to promote healing and emotional relaxation. Refreshing with a sweet and tart, fruity taste.

Origin: Highlands of Yunnan

Health: Acute/chronic pain relief, aids skin health/circulation, boosts serotonin

Osmanthus Black Tea 小種桂花茶 25

Sweet osmanthus blossoms hand dried and blended with traditional Tongmu black tea, gently smoked over pinewood. This modern fruity version brings out aromas of dried longan and honey combined with the soft smokiness of the XiaoZhong black tea.

Origin: Tongmuguan, Wuyi Mountains, Fujian

Health: Aids digestion and lung health, warms cold sensitivity, and boosts mental clarity

Green Teas

Long Jing Tea 西湖龍井（明前茶） 25

Longjing green tea is the highest quality green tea in China, renowned as an imperial tea since the Tang dynasty. Grown in mild climates and bountiful rainfall to help create a rich, refreshing taste and a fragrant orchid-like aroma. Fresh harvested once a year in early spring.

Origin: Longjing Village, West Lake, Hangzhou, Zhejiang

Health: Cools internal heat, soothes the liver, brightens the eyes, refreshes the mind

Jasmine Dragon Pearl Tea 龙珠茉莉花茶 20

"Dragon Pearls" symbolize auspicious energy and perfection. Each pearl unfurls like spring blossoms; premium green tea leaves that are scented with fresh jasmine blossoms. Low-temperature techniques preserve the floral integrity, infusing the tea with rich, elegant fragrance without overpowering the leaf.

Origin: Fuzhou province, Fujian

Health: Calms the mind, relieves stress, hydrates the throat, rich in antioxidants

Oolong and Black Teas

Da Hong Pao 武夷山大紅袍 25

The most celebrated of the Wuyi rock oolongs, known for its mineral-rich aroma and deep, complex flavor. This tea combines roasted floral notes, and earthy tones. Legend tells of a scholar cured by this tea on his journey to the imperial exam. After passing, he draped a red robe on the tea bushes in gratitude, giving the tea its name: "Big Red Robe."

Origin: Jiulongke cliffs of Wuyi Mountains, Fujian

Health: Aids digestion after a rich meal, warms the body, and relaxes the spirit

Tie Guan Yin 鐵觀音 (濃香型) 25

Tieguanyin is one of China's most famous oolong teas, named after the Iron Goddess of Mercy. This strong-roast style offers two styles- a natural, lightly baked orchid aroma, golden with a sweet floral note, and charcoal roasted rich aroma with notes of ripe fruit and caramel.

Origin: Anxi County, Fujian province

Health: Aids digestion, refreshes the mind, and soothes the chest/body tension

Cinnamon Rock Tea 武夷肉桂 28

One of the famed varieties of Wuyi oolong teas, premium and unique in palate. Its name comes from the signature spicy-aromatic note that occurs naturally from the leaf itself. This amber tea delivers strong mineral undertones, notes of fruit, and a roasted cinnamon finish.

Origin: Core cliff zones of Wuyi Mountains, Fujian

Health: Aids digestion, reduces inflammation, sharpens the senses

Pu Erh Tea 冰島宮廷普洱茶 (熟) 25

This tea is harvested from ancient trees in the Bingdao region, a place once known for supplying tribute tea to the imperial court. Through traditional fermentation and aging, it develops a silky texture with notes of jujube, sticky rice, and aged wood.

Origin: Bingdao region, Lincang, Yunnan

Health: Strengthens the stomach, replenishes energy, warms internal cold

Xiao Zhong Black Tea 正山小種 (花果香) 20

The original black tea of the world, crafted in Tongmu during Ming Dynasty. Traditionally pine smoked, with a modern preparation style by lightly baking and naturally withering the leaves to bring out a smooth and mellow flavor, with a lingering sweet finish of longan.

Origin: Core cliff zones of Wuyi Mountains, Fujian

Health: Aids digestion, reduces inflammation, sharpens the senses
