Old Cutler Inn

Palmetto Bay is getting back a piece of its soul. Across from the Deering Estate, the Old Cutler Inn is opening its doors as a fresh neighborhood hub while paying homage to a long-lost local landmark. Once upon a time, Snowden's—later renamed Old Cutler Inn—was where fishermen brought in their daily catch to fry up on site, a spot as famous for its hospitality as it was for its Friday fish fries. It closed in the early 2000s, but this new version is here to restore that spirit of community.

The modern Old Cutler Inn is built around a wood-fired stove, offering a menu that balances nostalgia with something new. Think wahoo fish dip and raw bar specialties alongside heartier picks like Korean barbecue short ribs and steak frites. The space fits 125 guests, with both indoor and outdoor seating designed for lingering over a glass of wine or a cocktail, or perhaps the white truffle martini. Oh hello.
